Sumter County Surrounded By History

Discover Desoto and our agrarian roots

Welcome to Americus and Sumter County!
Founded in 1832, Americus was a major center in its early days and the site of 3 hospitals for Confederate soldiers during the Civil War. Whether you prefer to buy the proposition that the town was founded by high spirited "merry cusses" or that it was named for explorer Amerigo Vespucci, Americus is a history lesson in pioneer spirit.

Sumter County is strategically located in southwest Georgia and is easily accessible to major southern cities via a splendid highway system. I-75 is located 25 miles east and U.S. Highways 19 & 280 intersect the city.
Atlanta, the state capital, is 134 miles north, Columbus is 60 miles northwest, Macon is 70 miles northeast, and Albany is 35 miles south. The mountains of north Georgia and the beaches of the Atlantic Ocean and Gulf of Mexico are about equal distance from Sumter County.

Enjoy a visit to Plains, the hometown of our 39th president. There you can walk the Plains High School museum or experience the charm of Jimmy Carter's Boyhood Home and Farm. The Andersonville National Historic Site, a confederate prison where more than 13,000 Union soldiers died, is visited by over 150,000 people each year. Here you will also find the National POW Museum which preserves the history of the captivity of wars throughout time. In the fall, a festival is held in the tiny Civil War village of Andersonville with actual battle re-enactments, entertainment and craft vendors. The Georgia Rural Telephone Museum is located 10 miles east in Leslie and takes you on a communication journey through the ages.

The county is rich in architectural culture as well.
Our National Register Historic District is filled with antebelum and Victorian Era home. Many public buildings in downtown Americus have remained in use for over a century.
Enjoy live stage performances at Rylander Theater or spend the night in luxury at the Windsor Hotel, two crown jewels of mainstreet downtown.

Whatever you do, we are glad you are here and extend to you the warmest of hellos! We at the Americus-Sumter County Chamber of Commerce truly hope you enjoy yourself in our beautiful community!
